Obio, send us an account of a woman over there (giving her name) who recently punished a little grandchild for a trival offence, by taking one of its hands and holding it before the fire until burned to a blister. We decline to puplish so se rious a charge against any one unless object the peaceable and equitable solution of difficulties between employers and employers. It provides, among other things, that where seven persons who may be aggrieved so desire they can petition the Court of Common Pleas to appoint a Board of Arbitration to settle such grievances as are alleged to exist. If, in the opinion of the court, such appointment is necessary to preserve the public peace, a commission of nine shall be appointed, three by the Court, and three each by each of the contesting parties. The court shall designate the President of the Board and also the Secretary. This Board shall constitute a court empowered with all the functions necessary to determine the equities of the case. The reseions shall be public and each party shall have a full and impartial hearing of the merits of the case.

How Would this Plan Work in Our Mills, Glass Works, &c. The Raiway Age is informed that the conductors of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad receive, in addition to their regular salary, 25 cents a day in the stock of the Company for the first year's service, 50 cents for the second, and 75 cents for the third and subsequent years. The stock is paid them at its quoted value, and there have been instances of conductors who realized from $3,000 to 5,000 tors who realized from $5,000 to 5,000 from stock thus acquired, on severing their connection with the road. The idea of thus identifying employes with the interests of the Company is, it seems to us, a most excellent one. No man, however honest and faithful, works with the real honest and faithful, works with the real hearliness and hope—where he is simply earning a daily stipend which is liable to be stopped at any time—that animale him when he knows that he is to share directly in the success of the business— in other words, is a partner, and thus "working for himself." We believe that the efficiency of our railway service would "working for himself." We believe that the efficiency of our railway service would be greatly promoted by a more general adoption of this co-operative system. Unfortunately the stock of too many of our companies is no ta valuable commodity, but, those, whose pay have a market value, no matter how low a point it has reached at present, can give their deserving men a great incentive by paying them a certain bonus per day or per month in stock at the then ruling rate.

We observe an other movement in connection with the road that is well calculated to attract attention to its future. An important ratiroad connection for the Central West and Southwest is in course of construction to afford an opening to the eea for the road. This new connection leaves the C. & O. at Hanover Junction, twenty-eight miles west of Rielmond Va. and strikes the deep water of member the usary confidence of the state. tion, twenty-eight miles west of Rietmond, Va., and strikes the deep water of the York river forty-five miles distant at West Point. The company interested in this road have constructed extensive wharves and freight depots at West Point, and have already established and had running since last aummer a line of fron steamers through the Chesapeake Bay to Baltimore, giving direct water communication for freight with all Eastern ports. A bill is now pending in Congress, which will undubttelly pars, making West Point a port of entry. It is one day's nester sail to all foreign ports than Baltimore, and the water approaches to it are even better. The York river carries sufficient water the year round to accommodate large class ocean vessels, and in that respect its situation is most desirable. It avoids the difficulties of the accommodate large class ocean vessels, and in that respect its situation is most desirable. It avoids the difficulties of the and in that respect its situation is most desirable. It avoids the difficulties of the James river near and below Richmond, and is, indeed, equal to a terminus directly upon Hampton Roads. In one sense it is better for Western freight, since railroad transportation ends and the cheaper water charges begin seventy miles from the Capes, which is the distance from West Point to the outside sea. The opening of this road will bring Cincinnati, St. Louis, and Louisville a hundred miles nearer the sea than by way of Baltimore. The enterprise of opening this road, and of providing all the facilities for the transfer of freight between the East and the Central West and Southwest, and also for the loading and forwarding of imported goods, is in the hands of energetic men, and the work in all its parts is to be vigorously pushed forward.

Crossing the River on Mouday

Crossing the River on Monday Last.

Steubenville Gasatia.

Our river reporter had quite an adventure this morning in crossing on the ice at New Comberland. The ferryman and two passengers undertook to cross by handing a yawl over along as a safeguard in case the ice proved too thin. And we wish to state right here that if it hadric been for that yawl there would be two or three widows and several orphans, besides a large circle of friends to mourn the loss of three departed braves. Ferry time the yawl would break through the lee, it was the signal for all hands to seramble on deak," which all succeeded in doing without getting a cold hath, except the ferryman, who tried the depth of the water onco up to the neck, and finding no bottom, concluded to wipe of his chin and stick to the boat. We wish to say that Captain 3 jim Brandon, who runs the above ferry, is one of the most volving ferrymen we know of along the river, and is always at his post. He will get you over if he has to swim and carry you in his mouth.

KEYSER, January 4, 1877.

Editors Intelligencer:
We, the inhabitants of Keyeer, were very much astonished this morning to find the ground covered with snow to the depth of at least 15 inches. We were more astonished from the fact that it was depth of at least 10 inches, we seem more astonished from the fact that it was not even snowing at midnight so no one could draum that so much anow could fall in so short a time. But some one remarked this morning, "that when it snows, it snows" out here in the mountains, and from what I see to-day I have no reason to dispute the truth of the assertion. Keyser is surrounded by mountains and to-day there is a sublimity given to the scenery that no one can duly realize unless he beholds it. Ft. Piano has the appearance of one huge snow pile decorated with sprigs of evergreen. It was my intention this morning to visit the old fort, but not fancying the idea of wading through the depth of snow I desisted and will be forced to come home without that pleasure. The merry jingle of the sleigh bells is heard in the streets this afternoon. This snow reminds me for one that fell in this place about 13 walue, no matter how low a point it has reached at present, can give their deserving men a great incentive by paying the sleigh bells is heard in the streets of one that fell in this place about 13 years app, through which I was forced to travel much more than I did through this other than the attention of intending immigrants to the attractions afforded by the country in Virginia and West Virginia along the line of its route. sensationalism in the Church.

Ser Yerk Tribuse.

A growing demand for sensuous worship is assigned as the cause of the Rev., Dr. William Newton's withdrawal from the Protestant Episcopal Churh. In a letter to Bishop Stevens, of Pennsylvanis, he states that his eyes have been opened to the saddest conclusion of his life; that by slow degrees a change has come over the spirit of the Church to such an extent that sensationalism on one hand or formalism on the other must characterize the ministrations of the Pulpit, or by some means the offending incumbent must be got rid of. "In there not," he asks, "every-where an increasing impatience with the simplicity of the Gospel. Do you not meet on every hand a growing demand for the objective symbols of-a mere sensuous worship? Is there not a fearful increasing pressure upon our pulpits to substitute the gospel of sensationalism for the simple story of the Cross of Christ? Who can doubt that advanced ritualism is in the line of the popular demand of the day among our churches? mand of the day among our churches And when these things take form in se mand of the day among our charcoses. And when these things take form in services so clearly Romanistic that the thin vail of the one glorious name, Protestant Episcopal, alone remains to deceive the looker on, have you any power to interfere to correct the evily. Dr. Newton preached his farewell sermon at the Church of the Nativity, Philadelphia, last Sunday, and then retired from the Protestant Episcopal ministry. A number of his parishioners, who had resolved not to be separated from their rector in church relations, were quietly but zealously engaged in forming the nucleus of another church, and on Wednesday evening a company assembled in asmall hall, and effected a church organization, to be known as the Church of the Covenant, under the government of the Reformed Episcopal Church. Sixty-four persons presented their names as members of this new church. More Sheep Going South.
